WASHINGTON — At the heart of the nation's capital, near bustling Dupont Circle, is the headquarters of a new international campaign to "destabilize" the CIA.

The announcements are being made in Havana, but the vehicle of the campaign is a magazine being put together by former Central Intelligence Agency officer Philip Agee, "the agency's number one nemesis," and a number of colleagues bent on "exposing CIA personnel and operations whenever and wherever we find them."

The new publication, which is expected to appear about six times a year, is called the Covert Action Information Bulletin, and its tone is uncompromising. Urging a worldwide effort to print the name of anyone who works abroad for the CIA, Agee advises readers of the first issue not to stop there. Once the names have been made public, he recommends:

"Then organize public demonstrations against those named — both at the American embassy and at their homes — and, where possible, bring pressure on the government to throw them out. Peaceful protest will do the job. And when it doesn't, those whom the CIA has most oppressed will find other ways of fighting back."

Agee concludes: "We can all aid this struggle, together with the struggle for socialism in the United States itself."

"This thing is incredible... unbelievable," said a CIA spokesman, Herbert Hetu. "The motivation of these people has got to be more than that they're just ticked off at the CIA."

"This goes beyond whistle-blowing," Hetu said of the magazine. "Whistle-blowing is supposed to be directed at wrongdoing. These people are operating under the overall pretext that everything we do is wrong."

Expelled from Britain and a succession of other Western European countries over the past two years, Agee reportedly is living in Rome, but the magazine is being published in Washington by C. I. Publications Inc., a nonprofit corporation set up in the District of Columbia on Dec. 22.

Its incorporators, directors and officers are William H. Schaap, a lawyer and editor in chief of a newsletter called the Military Law Reporter; Ellen Rav, a colleague of Schaap on various boards and projects; and Louis Wolf, coeditor with Agee of a new book entitled "Dirty Work: The CIA in Western Europe."

The book is designed as a how-to-do-it manual aimed at "breaking the 'cover' of thousands of CIA agents around the world."
